By default, this option will be OFF, meaning that while sending a message, the software will not check the number status—whether it is available on WhatsApp or not. If you want to filter it, turn this option ON, and the software will quickly filter all numbers just before sending messages. Previously, the software was filtering numbers one by one while sending messages, which was a very time-consuming process. But now, it will filter all numbers first before sending messages, then send messages one by one to the available numbers.
